Yes

No

 1. Originality: Does the paper contain new and significant information adequate to justify publication?

have multiple errors inside in writing, say the last names, title, or publications titles, cities, no space after periods, etc....

no way this work is done with proper judgment...

 2. Relationship to Literature: Does the paper demonstrate an adequate understanding of the relevant literature in the field and cite an appropriate range of literature sources? Is any significant work ignored?

sources are wrong, for instance; (Robinson, 2015) (SC Tulsian, 2016) = what are these?

 3. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?

OK but apparently did not show any evidence, rather than showing the results

This lack of professionalism

 4. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?

this only consists of the statistical results & not arranged in such a way that those are pleasantly nice for the audience to see...

 5. Practicality and/or Research implications: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for practice and/or further research? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?

does not even have the contributions and practicality of the implication of the theory or results. This work is undone...

 6. Quality of Communication: Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc.

really need to work with others in trying to achieve the quality = this lacks grammar and typo corrections
